

of the world, known only to the two principals whose lips are sealed by death, was the real cause of the shocking tragedy that has stirred Talbot county, where Mrs. Woodill was known as a singer and a woman of attainments.

A search of the bungalow where the murder was committed is being made today and, bit by bit, letters and scraps of evidence that lead to Los Angeles, San Francisco, and San Diego, in California, New York city, Boston, Washington, Baltimore, Minneapolis, and even to Berlin and Paris, are being gathered together by the inquirers who are trying to find the real motive behind the crime.

The mute testimony of letters which the man failed to destroy and stories told the jury by persons who knew Mrs. Woodill, point today to the conclusion that Eastman knew who Mrs. Woodill was and that Mrs. Woodill knew all about Eastman.

Detectives learned today that Eastman was acquainted with the woman even before she went to New York, where she met Woodill and before Eastman became known in Wall street as a stock broker. This something that Eastman knew, the detectives are convinced, was the parentage of the fascinating beauty, who captured the attention of men prominent in the public life and gained her entrance to the White House and the best homes in Baltimore and Washington.

Knew Him Fugitive.

That Mrs. Woodill knew that Eastman was a fugitive from justice in New York was also evident. Every bit of new light shed on the mysterious case today tends to the conclusion that the lives of the two had been linked for years, perhaps from infancy. Eastman's mysterious disappearance from Baltimore, his wife in New York, that he was going away to make a fortune, are interpreted to mean that he was going away to see if he could make capital of what he knew of Mrs. Woodill's mysterious life, thinking that her wealth and social position would make it easy for him to secure money from her as the price of his silence.

It was learned this morning that Eastman had been in Los Angeles for several months ago, where he met Mrs. Woodill and detectives here think that at that time the meeting at McDaniels was planned. Eastman returned to Baltimore from the West shortly before Mrs. Woodill and her husband arrived here to visit Col. Charles A. Thompson, the young woman's foster parent. He went immediately to the Eastern Shore and looked for property adjoining the Thompson farm. Not one word concerning Mrs. Woodill escaped his lips. Friends of the murdered woman declare that when Eastman and Mrs. Woodill met they appeared to have not known each other before. In the light of future events it appears that there was some secret understanding between them.

Followed the Woman.

From what can be learned today, Eastman had followed Mrs. Woodill from Boston to New York and across the Atlantic and back again, and then to California, after she met and married Woodill, a year and a half ago.

Eastman's efforts to either force her to give up money or to induce her to run away with him were responsible for the meetings at the lonesome bungalow near McDaniels, say the detectives. Eastman worked his plan quietly, and with evident cunning, it is said. Several trips in the launches, accompanied sometimes by friends, served to avert suspicion until the day when he called for a meeting at which only the two who had stood in fear of each other for years could be present.

Eastman's proposition to Mrs. Woodill is supposed to have been met with a statement from the young woman that she would turn him over to the New York authorities as a fugitive, and the death struggle ensued. The story that the party of merry-makers and the drunken orgie in his launch is not believed by the police. They say that he wrote the letter to offer an explanation that would clear his memory and conceal whatever may have been the real motive behind the crime.

Accounts Believed.

It seems reasonably certain that the account written by Eastman of his efforts to dispose of the body is correct. Bloody planks, a wheelbarrow smeared with blood, and evidences of a frenzied attempt to strip the body of all signs of identification, which have been found at Eastman's bungalow, all bear out this part of the letter. But the detectives think that the man killed the woman in the boat and then carried the body to the house and afterward to the river again.

The authorities, however, are making every effort to ascertain whether the lights and voices in the bungalow, noticed by Edward Smith, who was on duty tonight, were evidences of a party for which letters indicate Eastman had been preparing.

The mysterious launch which A. E. Plummer says he saw coming from Broad Creek Sunday morning, with a party of merry-makers, and which was luxuriously fitted out, is thought to have contained other guests who were present at the party. The launch, after the guests had left, it is thought that Mrs. Woodill started for the home of her foster parent in Eastman's launch, and that he killed her that night, kept the body in his bungalow all the next day, and threw it into the creek the next night.

Pawned Her Jewels.

While practically all the people of St. Michaels declare their belief that Robert E. Eastman did not murder Mrs. Woodill, State's Attorney Turner is working on the theory that he committed the crime, robbed the body of its jewels, and later pawned them in Baltimore.

Mr. Turner has telephoned Alexander Radcliffe, foreman of the coroner's jury, that while he is working on the robbery theory he is also following up the story contained in the letter which was found on Eastman's body and which declared that Mrs. Woodill had been murdered by another woman.

It has been determined by the investigation of the authorities here that after Mrs. Woodill was killed in Eastman's house she was carried from there to the boat in a wheelbarrow. While Eastman was very lame and not strong enough to carry a human body, he could well have transported it in the barrow, which was found covered with bloodstains.

Jewelry Found.

That robbery may have been the motive for the murder is strongly suggested by Mr. Turner's discovery today that $500 worth of jewelry, the property of Mrs. Woodill, had been pawned in Baltimore the early part of this week, when Eastman was there on a trip. These jewels were as follows:

One marquise ring, with a brown diamond in the center, surrounded by smaller diamonds; one diamond ring with a large stone in the center, surrounded by smaller diamonds, and one Oriental bracelet made of pearls in the shape of a bunch of grapes.

Although it had been the intention of the authorities to bury Eastman's body this afternoon, it was decided today not to take this action, and it is thought the change of plans was due to a telephone call from the State's Attorney.

SNIFFIN TO WED IN KANSAS CITY

Both General, Who Is Sixty-five Years Old, and Fiancee, Live in Washington.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 26.—A marriage license has been issued here for the wedding of Gen. Culver Channing Sniffin and Mrs. Zenobia Richardson for today, at the home of the groom's niece, Mrs. Clyde Hunt, 3632 Flora avenue.

General Sniffin was secretary to President Grant, from 1869 to 1877. Following that he was appointed major in the paymaster's service from New York, made lieutenant colonel assistant paymaster in 1899, colonel assistant paymaster general in 1903, and brigadier general paymaster general in 1908. Two years later he retired. He is sixty-five years old. Both the general and Mrs. Richardson live in Washington.

The reason for holding the wedding in Kansas City is that the bride's parents, who live in Harrisonville, Mo., may be present. The Rev. Sanford M. Brown, of this city, is to perform the ceremony.

OFFICERS LOOKING FOR STRANGE BOAT

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 26.—The police here are on the lookout for the strange craft alleged to have taken a party of merry-makers from this city to McDaniels a week ago today, but so far nothing has been found that would indicate that it was seen here. Every launch in the harbor is well known, and the police say that the movements of all have been accounted for.

The "girls at Annapolis" mentioned in the letter to Eastman by "Howorth," who are supposed to have been present at the party, cannot be located here.

SAYS SHE'S MOTHER OF MRS. WOODILL

LEWISTON, Idaho, June 26.—Mrs. Albert Knight, formerly Mrs. Matthew Wirtz, claiming to be the mother of Mrs. Edith May Woodill, has been found in Ashaka, in the mountains forty miles from this city. Mrs. Knight related the story of her daughter's adoption by Mrs. Thompson, in Minneapolis, in 1890.

The separation of the mother and the infant daughter was the result of the murder of the husband and father. Then the family lived on Couse Creek, near Asotin. The father, it is declared, was shot by Henry Wayman in a dispute over wages. Mrs. Knight said:

"After my daughter was adopted by Mrs. Thompson her name was changed to Edith May Thompson. I heard from her quite frequently for two years. The last time I heard from her was when Mrs. Thompson took her to Europe to complete her education. I know nothing of her life during the last fourteen years. She was my only child by Matthew Wirtz, to whom I had been married less than two years at the time he was murdered."

JEFF DAVIS FLAYS TARIFF SCHEDULES

Declares Colleagues Are Voting Strictly for Their Own Interests.

Hot as was the weather today in the Senate chamber, Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas made it still hotter by a burning speech in which he attacked the pending tariff bill in bitter fashion. Not only the tariff, but the pools, trusts and combinations and the malefactors of great wealth came in for a strenuous lambasting.

Moreover, to add to the interest of the occasion, Senator Davis shied a few bricks at some of the Senators, especially Senator Aldrich, Senator Smoot, and one or two others. He contrasted the action of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, who had interest in lead and would not vote on it, with the course taken by Senator Smoot, who told the carded woolmen to quit that business, like he, and get on with the wool. He recalled that Senator Scott of West Virginia had said on the floor of the Senate that a certain Senator had told him when it was proposed to reduce the duties on window glass he had not $35,000 in the window glass industry last year. "More strange still," said Senator Davis, "this statement is not contained in the Record."

Articles Justified.

"Have you any wonder then, Mr. President," asked Senator Davis, "that there are continuously being published articles in the metropolitan press of this country that the Senate is honey-combed with Senators who are voting strictly in their own interests?"

"I am willing to stand with the Senator of Wisconsin and turn my pockets before my constituents every Saturday night, if they require it." Declaring the bill was virtually the product of Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, who was selected by a Legislature chosen by 11 per cent of the votes in that State, he said:

"So it is, sir, that this bill today, with all of its iniquity and all of its enormous burdens, is imposed upon the American people by the representatives of the will of 11 per cent of the people of the little State of Rhode Island."

Chairman Supreme.

"Members of the Finance Committee accede to the dictates of the chairman of this committee to such an extent that it is patent to all. Why, sir, the Senator from Utah, Mr. Smoot, has so long been under the influence of this environment, that he has copied the mannerisms, the mode of speech, and the other Senatorial paraphernalia of the Senator from Rhode Island."

"He was nodded down with the tactics of a schoolmaster, and he was astonished the other day, when the glass duty was under consideration to see Senator Aldrich, who was Senator Aldrich, rich to be allowed to offer an amendment to the pending schedule."

"He was nodded down with the tactics of a schoolmaster, and he was astonished the other day, when the glass duty was under consideration to see Senator Aldrich, who was Senator Aldrich, rich to be allowed to offer an amendment to the pending schedule."

"Platform Jugglery."

"By artifice and cunning, and by platform jugglery they led the American people to believe that they intended to do just what they did not intend to do, lighten the burden of taxation upon the consumer, and from their helplessness industries yet greater, and to still swell their already colossal fortunes and to take from the poor man the last vestige of hope and from the helpless families their means of sustenance."

"But, sir, the American people are awakening today to the full realization of the fact that they have been tricked and cheated of their birthright, and that the promises of the Republican party are as broken reeds and smoking flax, and today, sir, they are turning their faces in hopefulness and glad acclaim to the great Middle West where a small cloud has arisen, not larger than a man's hand, but which is gathering in strength and volume, led by the insurgent forces of the Republican party in this body, that assures, sir, the destruction and destruction of the old Bourbon element, that old dominant party planted by Hamilton, in which there yet reposes the spirit of kings and the belief that one crowd was created to be ridden, booted, and spurred by their masters, and that when they call for bread they should be given a stone and when their children cry for a fish they should be given a serpent."

False to Trust.

Every line of the bill proved, said Senator Davis, that the Republican leadership proved false to the people, and the Finance Committee had the "brazen effrontery" to say the object of it was to give a select class yet greater privileges.

"Why is this true, Mr. President? Why do the Republican leaders on this floor no longer conceal their real purpose? Why do they exhibit their mailed hand and cloven hoof in this transaction? Why are they drunk with power? Upon temporary glory. Upon passing success. They feel that these protected industries whose 'slush fund' and whose 'blood money' has kept them in power for the last quarter of a century, possess now such omnipotent power that they hold upon the throats of the people cannot be loosened, and their power to rob them further cannot be destroyed."

SMITH REPORTED MUCH IMPROVED

Superintendent of Botanic Garden Recovering From Sudden Attack.

The condition of Superintendent William R. Smith, of the Botanic Garden, who was taken suddenly ill while on a visit to his country place in Maryland, Monday, was much improved today. Mr. Smith was able to sit up most of the day, and it is thought he will be well enough to be out by Monday.

While Mr. Smith's condition was at one time considered serious, as he had symptoms of ptomaine poisoning, it is now believed he was overcome by the intense heat while on a visit to his farm. He had drunk a considerable quantity of water and taken a long walk in the afternoon, which immediately preceded the attack.

This morning Mr. Smith's residence on the grounds comprising the Botanic Garden was filled with friends who had come to inquire about him. He was able to see all of them.

"When I was a boy in Scotland," he said, "I used to cook oatmeal, but not knowing how to properly prepare it, as I do now, my stomach became injured to an extent it has never recovered. I think this has something to do with my present illness. However, I am feeling much better than I did a few days ago, and I am sure that by next week I will be entirely recovered."

CAMP GOOD WILL NEEDS MORE HELP

Committee Depends Upon Public to Make Outings Possible.

The Summer Outings Committee of the Associated Charities is anxious to have the public that is interested in the poor and needy of the city to visit Camp Good Will. It is of access: just off the Military road, three-fourths of a mile from Brightwood, along the road there are sign posts that point the way.

It is an interesting place for any well-wisher of the poor to go. The guests of the camp are those in great need. The agents of the Associated Charities during the winter months make notes of needy applicants who would be benefited by a stay in the country. The ones selected are mothers with little babies, children suffering from lack of food, cripples, and poor folk living in insanitary homes.

Last year out of one party of fifty children that went to the camp, forty-seven had eye, ear, and throat trouble. The great advantage besides the pure air, good food, and healthy surroundings is the visit of the doctor every day. Every one who goes to Camp Good Will or Camp Pleasant is given a thorough medical examination. The recommendations of the physician are followed out strictly. Trained nurses co-operate with the doctors.

The following physicians are giving their services free:

The real support of the work has come, not only from those who go off to the mountains and seashore, but also from the great mass of our people who have to face summer conditions right here at home.

To the fund of the Summer Outings Committee, 311 G street, the following contributions have been added, which have been acknowledged by Andrew Facker, the treasurer:
